

LIQUID LIES

are we the liars those who view life through rose-colored glasses the fine citizens of the consumer-class who accept American capitalism as reality hook line and sinker shopping malls restaurants social status huge homes vacationing admiring the rich stars fashion labels latest trends talk shows gossip mags TV all circles we step in but were taught differently are we not the people of product placements the walking billboards speaking commercials and puppets of Corporate America in the way we talk act eat drink sleep look & even smell all devised + caught up in the worlds wide web illusions of fate manufactured by people in glass high rises mirroring one another's wealth of egos trumps of towers one day to be shattered by the planets revenge against alien materials and toxins devised in laboratories spilling on our earth draining into our glasses nourishing while silently poisoning our children oh this sphere we live on has many liquids for its sentient beings to feed flowing throughout our land contaminated by greed + carelessness all tapped into and stolen by people who make living so complicated individuals who break up families for a few more hours work groups who use fear and hate and control to get their way those whose desire for power is an endless thirst yet we keep providing our liquids freely with every drop